ALLIES MOVE UP ON TWO FRONTS

Disaster Danger Fades In Ohio Floods

RAIN-GORGED RIVER BEGINS A SLOW DROP

'Worst Is Over,' Rivermen Say, Families Return to Clean Up Flood Damage.

OHIO ROADS HIT HARD

Tributary Streams Do Damage Estimated at Million to State Highways.

(By Associated Press)

MARIETTA — The rain-gorged Ohio river receded north of here today as a crest nine feet above flood stage in places rolled on downstream.

Rivermen generally agreed "the worst is over." Hundreds of families driven from lowland homes upriver returned to clean up while those downstream hoped property damage would remain relatively small.

Tributary floods apparently proved most costly. Harry Metcalif, chief highway maintenance engineer, estimated damage to roads in southern Ohio at $1,000,000. Two drownings were reported in West Virginia; swollen streams in northern Ohio claimed the lives of two children.

The muddy Ohio "flattened out" between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati over the week-end after cessation of persistent rains in the area. Further rain was not expected before tomorrow and forecasts indicated it would hardly approach last week's downpour.

College Students Help

Marietta merchants worked throughout the night moving stocks to safety as the river rose a tenth of a foot an hour towards an anticipated mid-morning crest of 45 feet, nine above flood stage.

They were aided by about 100 Marietta college students given "vacations" until Wednesday when

Examiner Finds $2,600 Shortage In Clerk's Books

MT. GILEAD—A shortage of $2,669 in the records of Alfred D. Crock, 26, Morrow county clerk of courts who has been missing for nearly seven weeks, was reported today by State Examiner Freeman A. Smith.

In the absence of Crock, who disappeared early in March, a preliminary report showing the shortage was turned over to Deputy Clerk Robert Bennett. Smith began the special audit at the request of Morrow county officials two weeks after Crock disappeared.

C. C. Cluggish, chief clerk in the bureau of inspection of public offices at Columbus, said an official report of the findings is being compiled and will be sent to the Morrow county auditor and prosecutor within a few days.

Prosecutor Nelson Campbell said he planned no action until he receives a copy of the findings. He was to confer this afternoon with Morrow county commissioners on the procedure in handling the case.

Crash Puts Ashlander In Law's Hands

Youth Accused of Car Theft After Wreck; Held For Jury.

An Ashland youth was held in the county jail today awaiting grand jury action on charges of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent as the result of an accident involving an automobile reported stolen in Mansfield early Sunday morning.

The traffic mishap was one of three reported in the Mansfield district over the week-end. Although no one was injured at least eight persons were killed in highway collisions in other parts of the state.

Arraigned in municipal court this morning, Raymond E. Jacobs, 24, Ashland, waived preliminary examination and was bound over to the grand jury under $2,000. He pleaded innocent to the charge.

Detectives accused the youth of the theft of an automobile belonging to Ray E. Gale, 63½ Blanche street, stolen from South Park street, about 2 a. m. Sunday.

They said they had obtained a confession statement from Jacobs admitting driving the car to Ashland, where he wrecked the machine and then fled, later giving himself up to Ashland police.

Ashland authorities reported that Jacobs crashed into a car owned by Bradford Stuckey, parked on Clairmont avenue near College avenue.

The car driven by Jacobs, they said, careened across the street and crashed into a pole pinning him in the wreckage. Freed by Ashland officers young Jacobs was accused of "deliberately" lighting a cigare and tossing the match onto the ground, igniting gasoline which set the car on fire and then fleeing from the scene.. The blaze was extinguished by the Ashland fire department.

Jacobs was reported to have given up to Ashland police after fleeing to Cleveland where he called his father by long distance telephone and was told

OPPOSE CHANGE

CIO Fights Three Sets of Wage-Hour Amendments.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—CIO opposition to three sets of amendments to the wage-hour law was made known today, coincidentally with forecasts on Capitol Hill that some house Republicans would oppose drastic revisions.

The proposals, exempting various groups of employes from wage-hour standards, will come before the house Thursday as a prelude to hard-fought debate over amending the Wagner labor relations act. The senate, however, may not take up either item at this session.

CIO approval of the wage-hour law as it stands was voiced in a report by John L. Lewis, who declared proposed amendments were devised by "reactionary Garner Democrats" and were intended to weaken the act.

COURT UPHOLDS SEWER RENTAL

Denies Damages in Test Case, Finds City Can Inflict Penalty for Refusal to Pay.

Holding that the city of Mansfield has a right to shut off the water service to a home for non-payment of sewer rental, Judge P. H. Wieland of Morrow county today dismissed the petition of Mrs. Druzella Gatton, Mansfield, who sought $150 damages from the city in a case testing the sewer rental ordinance.

Judge Wieland, presiding in Richland county common pleas court by special assignment, handed down his decision after hearing evidence on Mrs. Gatton's demurrer to the city's answer and cross-petition to her damage suit.

Judge Wieland stated in his opinion that "the ordinance passed by the city, together with the regulations providing for the discontinuance of water service to residents delinquent in the payment of water and sewer charges, is not unreasonable and said regulations are authorized."

Atty. Joseph H. Ellison, representing Mrs. Gatton, contended that the city could not legally discontinue one service for non-payment of a charge for an associated service. The delinquent charges should be collected as property tax, he asserted.

Presenting the city's case, Solicitor Marion D. Ward said the two services were so closely related that the ordinance provided for collection of both charges at the same time and discontinuance of either or both of them for the failure to pay one charge.

The water service to Mrs. Gatton's home on South Main street was shut off last May 17 because she allegedly refused to pay a $4.21 sewer rental bill.

Atty. Ellison said today that Mrs. Gatton had not decided whether to appeal today's decision. Appeal bond was set at $100 by Judge Wieland.

2 ESCAPE JAIL AT MT. GILEAD

Youths Believed to Have Fled in Stolen Car After One Unlocked Jail Cell.

MT. GILEAD—Local and state officers today were searching for two youths who early last night walked away from the Morrow county jail where they were being held on charges of auto theft.

The pair, Clyde Kelly, 16, of Mt. Gilead, and Richard Roop, 19, of Mt. Vernon, walked away from the jail at about 8:30 p. m., after Roop, a trusty, unlocked the door of Kelly's cell, according to Marshall Charles Helman.

The youths are believed to have made their escape in an auto belonging to Harold Denton, an auto dealer at nearby Cardington, and which was reported stolen from Cardington last night.

Sheriff Oscar George was reported to have gone to Johnstown this morning to check a report by a gasoline station operator that two young men answering the description of Kelly and Roop had obtained gasoline at his station and drove away without paying for the fuel.

It was learned that Roop had been made a trusty to carry coal for the jail stove. He is believed to have freed Kelly while doing this chore. He had access to the jail keys. The two were being held here for the grand jury. Kelly is charged with the theft of a car belonging to Harold West of Mt. Gilead. He was returned here just last week from Marietta where officers apprehended him.

UNION CHIEF ARRESTED IN LABOR RACKET

$100,000 Extortion Charge Placed Against Service Employes President.

HELD ON DEWEY ORDERS

Ex-Convict Claims Politics Caused Action; Hotels Reported Victims.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — George Scalise, 43, a stocky ex-convict, undertaker and powerful sub-chieftain of the American Federation of Labor, today answered criminal charges that he had collected $100,000 in a labor extortion racket with a statement that he was a "victim of political aspirations."

Detectives seized the $25,000-a-year president of the Building Service Employes International union in a pre-dawn raid Sunday in a $9-a-day room at a midtown hotel.

They acted on instructions telephoned from San Francisco by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, who is campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination.

The union leader of 70,000 scrubwomen, chambermaids, elevator operators, porters and window cleaners was hustled to a police station and booked on charges of extorting $100,000 in the last three years from 20 New York hotels and 11 window cleaning firms.

Served Sentence.

Scalise, who served four and one-half years in Atlanta federal prison for white slavery in 1913 and since has been turned down twice in attempts to obtain a presidential pardon and restoration of civil rights, was fingerprinted and arraigned in general sessions court before Judge Jacob Gould Schurman, jr.

Assistant District Attorney Murray I. Gurfein said Scalise extorted money from hotels by threatening them with strikes, excessive wage increase demands and sabotage.

Troops Ready For Assault On Trondheim

Second Offensive by Land, Sea, and Air Planned Against Arctic Port of Narvik; American Killed

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—The Exchange Telegraph reported today from Gothenburg, Sweden that British and German troops are engaged in a battle north of Trondheim. The report said that Verdalsoeren, just north of Levanger—between Trondheim and Namsos—was in flames.

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM—Allied expeditionary troops moved in force against the German-occupied Norwegian port of Trondheim today and a British commander in the north warned that an immediate attack would be launched by land, sea and air on the Arctic port of Narvik.

The offensives against Trondheim and Narvik gathered momentum coincidentally with reports of the first American casualty in the Scandinavian war—Capt. Robert M. Losey, United States air attache, killed in a German bombardment in central Norway, where Norwegian troops aided by British officers were fighting back strongly against the Germans northeast of Oslo.

Fighting in which British and Norwegian forces threw back the Germans north of Narvik was reported by refugees arriving at the Swedish frontier and the British naval commander in the Narvik zone warned Norwegians to leave that port because it would be attacked without delay in an effort to blast out the German forces there.

The British commander broadcast from Tromsoe, north of Narvik, where it appeared the allies had landed additional troops for operations against the Germans hemmed in at the iron-ore port. Refugees reaching the frontier said that there had been considerable fighting north of Narvik, at Oesvattn and that the Germans had been driven back.

Invade Sweden?

The newspaper Norbotten Kurien of Luleaa reported without confirmation that 600 German soldiers already had crossed the Swedish frontier and been interned after fighting in the Narvik region.

In the Trondheim zone, the British troops were reported in a telephone dispatch from Roeros to be moving in considerable numbers toward Trondheim to attack from the south while other British and Norwegian troops, operating out of Namsos, attacked from the north.

Rreros is on the Trondheim-Oslo railroad, 70 miles southeast of Trondheim. It has been definitely confirmed, apparently, that the small Norwegian garrison had held out since the start of the German invasion in the rock-based fortress of Hegre, 25 miles east of Trondheim.

Drive Slows.

It was indicated that the German drive already had been slow-

RAIDS: British Bomb German Bases In Norway And Denmark

LONDON—(AP)—The British air force is synchronizing raids on German bases in Norway and Denmark, attempting to choke off the Nazi air ferry service which poured German troops into the invaded north country.

Air ministry announcements said both Aalborg, in northern Denmark, and Stavanger, southern Norwegian port, had been raided during the night by British bombers repeating attacks thta on the previous night also included Kristiansand, another southern port.

The Stavanger airdrome was "bombed and machine-gunned" destroying "a number of enemy aircraft," the ministry said. The Aalborg airdrome, which British believe is Germany's only large field in Denmark, was said to have suffered "extensive damage by high explosive and incendiary bombs."

Britain reported all raiders returned safely from the Stavanger attack and only one was missing after the Aalborg foray.

A Norwegian communique said British troops, appearing in eastern Norway 160 miles from their point of landing, had helped repulse the German advance north of Oslo while other allied forces were said to be encircling Trondheim after making landings north and south of that strategic city.

British claimed their transport of troops to Norway had been carried out without any losses from repeated German bomb attacks. The admiralty and war office, in a joint communiqque, said Namsos, 100 miles north of Trondheim, was bombed severely by Nazi planes damaging the town but failing to cause casualties among Allied troops there. The British trawler Rutlandshire was sunk but her crew was saved.

Increasing reports of German planes being downed on Swedish soil aroused apprehension in London that the Germans might strike through Sweden to send reinforcements and supples to their Norwegian forces.

Brothers Meet After 35 Years—'Tis a Braw Day

Scots Talk of the Highland and the Heather At Long-Delayed Reunion In Mansfield.

By JANE WILLIAMS

James Anderson, 100 Cleveland avenue, will have no difficulty in remembering the "most exciting moment in my life." It was that moment, one day last week, when he heard for the first time in 35 years the footstep of his brother Alex.

"I had been so homesick to see the little shaver," James said in his rich Scotch burr, "that I thought my heart would stop beating when I heard his footsteps on the porch. I couldn't wait until the door opened and I could see his face."

The Scotch jokes are flying thick and fast at the Cleveland avenue home where the brothers are united after a 35-year separation and a silence of more than ten years. Alex Anderson and his wife drove from Cleburne, Tex., when he received word that his brother had been ill and wanted to see him.

There is no talk of the war, but there is plenty about the highlands and the heather, and about the brother and two sisters still in Scotland. They're boys again, back in Aberdeen, tossing the gay banter and jests that made them the best of friends in their boyhood.

Alex Anderson, who is 54, came to America first. He left the "Old Country" in 1905 when he was 13, seeking adventure and filled with a desire to see the "wild Indians". He came directly to Mansfield because an old friend of the Anderson family lived here, the late Alex Fraser, father of Alex Fraser, 34 Brickman avenue. The young Scotchman remained in Mansfield for only a short time, but he still remembers some of the "young folks" with whom he coasted down the South Main street hill.

He decided to go on farther west because he still hadn't seen the Indians.

In the meantime his older brother, James, who was 27, decided to follow him to Mansfield, and left Aberdeen in 1910. But Alex had already started west and the two missed each other on the many crossroads of America.

James, like his brother, was a stone cutter. They had learned their trades in Aberdeen where stone work is the principal industry. He worked at his trade for awhile with the elder Fraser but later gave it up and went in the machine shop of the Ideal

"The sight of him has done me more good than all the medicine in the world," James Anderson (right) said of his brother, Alex Anderson, of Cleburne, Texas, whose trip to Mansfield the past week brought the brothers together after 35 years. The Mansfield man has been ill since last August. The brothers were separated in 1905 when Alex left Aberdeen, Scotland, to seek adventure in America.

SILENCER: Mysterious Weapon Freezes Enemy Guns, Nazis Say

By PIERRE J. HUSS

BERLIN—The first clue to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's mysterious new weapon of warfare—a secret device allegedly able to "freeze" enemy batteries into uselessness—was given to this correspondent today.

As Nazi Germany challenged British sea power in Norway with a 2,000-pound aerial bomb said to be capable of sinking a heavy cruiser or wrecking a battleship with a single hit, military sources vouchsafed the first hint as to the nature of the new land weapon.

With its aid, according to my informants, the German army will be able to silence key-points of the Maginot line. Available information indicates that the new weapon already has been tested out on the Western front. During the operations, it was said, several pill-boxes occupied by French and British troops have been taken "with hardly a shot fired."

So far as can be established without actually having seen the weapon in operation, its secret power apparently lies in this hypothesis:

Attacking troops, approaching stealthily or under the cover of bombs artillery to within a certain distance, can mobilize the firing power of any fortified point and take its defenders prisoner.

This has been done repeatedly and with success on the Western front during the last few months, it was said.

(Editor's Note: The description thus far available indicates that the mystery weapon is not a long-range gun of unprecedented destructive power, but rather a mechanical device or apparatus sufficiently small and mobile to be carried by advancing infantry.)

ed and that one Norwegian force was holding Raendsfjord, at the southern end of the Raendsfjord or lake only 25 miles north of Oslo

Swedish press reports from the frontier were that Norwegian and British troops had taken Hamar, on Lake Miosen, 45 miles northeast of Raendsfjord.

Well informed British quarters expressed doubt that these reports were true But it seemed certain that a British force had made its way down the Gudbrandsal valley from Andalsnes, on the North sea coast, by the Molde-Andalsnes-Lillehammer - Hamar - Oslo railroad and stood today square in the German's path

Main Force.

The main British - Norwegian force was reported to be in the Lillehammer region, 30 miles north of Hamar in the Gudbrandsal valley.

German airplane bombings of Andalsnes, on the coast, Dombas, midway down the railroad to Lillehammer, and Lillehammer itself were taken as tacit confirmation of British advance and the likelihood of a stand by Norwegian and British troops

The report of the Allied recapture of Hamar came chiefly by way of a Stockholm Aftonbladet dispatch from "somewhere in Norway." It was circumstantial, and asserted that the town had been retaken after fierce hand to hand fighting.

Despite the skepticism with which this report was received, it was indicated that the German pressure on the Norwegians in the Hamar Elverum area was meeting with its first real resistance, and that the resistance might increase steadily.

It was confirmed, furthermore, that a small Norwegian garrison still held out in the rock-based fortress of Hegre, east of Trondheim. Not only had the stronghold resisted all German attacks it was reported here, but the fortress guns had been trained on Varenes airdrome 12½ miles to the south, and had completed the wreckage of the field which British airplanes and warships had started

PARADE OF PENNIES STARTS IN NATION-WIDE RELIEF CRUSADE

Children of Mansfield and Richland county schools today joined with others throughout the country in opening the Children's Crusade for Children, to benefit the war-stricken children abroad

Mite cans were placed in city, town and rural schools throughout the nation in which children will be asked to put pennies they would otherwise spend in their own pleasures to aid the war-desolated children of the world. The crusade continues for ten days, closing April 30.

The mite cans, contributed by the sheet metal and tin can manufactures of America, were to go in nearly every school room in the country, and are to be collected by school principals at the end of the drive.

Money from Mansfield schools will be taken to the Citizens National Savings and Trust Bank, then forwarded to Arlington, Vt, home of Dorothy Canfield Fisher, national chairman of the crusade.

To help make the children of America more aware of the advantages of the democratic way of life, and to encourage them to contribute. voluntarily, as many pennies as they are years old, or anything down to a single penny, to relieve the plight of the war-stricken children abroad.

Cincinnati looked for a 60-foot crest while Louisville, Ky., prepared for a top of 36 feet about Thursday. Cincinnati's flood stage is 52 feet. The stage there at midnight was 53.15 feet and rising about .05 of a foot an hour. The water was three feet above flood stage of 28 feet at Louisville.

One of the hardest hit towns was Point Pleasant, W. Va., traditional flood victim Seven feet of water swirled through the main street last night and at least 50 families evacuated their homes.

A crest nine feet above the 36-foot flood stage was predicted. Poferoy was isolated and the Scioto river backed up behind Portsmouth. cutting that city off from highway travel Mayor Earl J Magg of Morrow, O estimated damage there at $15,000 and said he would seek a federal grant of $5,000 for rehabilitation work

HE'S SAFE AT SECOND by a split second! Yes, it's another stolen base for George Case. He stole 51 bases last season...led the major leagues...won wide acclaim as the "fastest man in baseball." It makes your legs ache to watch him, he runs so fast. But when George lights up a cigarette, speed is out. "No fast burning for me," he says. "I always smoke the slower-burning brand...Camel. Camels give me several big extras in smoking."

OFF THE DIAMOND, George Case (below) prefers a slower pace...he likes to fish... smokes Camels a lot. He says: "Slower-burning Camels are more than mild—they're extra mild and extra cool. The more I smoke Camels, the more I like their full, rich flavor." Yes, the more you smoke Camels, the more you'll appreciate their extra mildness, extra coolness, and extra flavor.

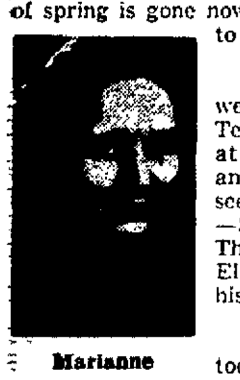
Informally Speaking...

April 22, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

THE sun has come through at long last, and finally we're having a perfectly beautiful day. . . .But it is about time, because a month of spring is gone now, and we've hardly had a day that measures up to the specifications of the season.



Marianne

* * * * *

But just to make sure they'll have spring weather, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beidel have gone to Texas. . . .They're driving down, planning to stop at Wichita Falls, to visit with their son, Robert, and his wife. . . .There they'll have the thrill of seeing their baby granddaughter for the first time—Sandra Suzann is only seven months old. . . . Then before returning north, the Beidels will go to El Paso to visit with their other son, Arthur, and his wife.

* * * * *

The most exciting news I have to tell you about today, Lucy, is of a new engagement in our town. . . . John Lannan presented Marjorie Logan with a beautiful diamond ring Saturday night, so I guess folks shouldn't wonder at the couple's broad smiles these days.

* * * * *

I told you some time ago of C. D. (Don) Dancer's going to Miami, Fla., Havana and Nassau, remember? Well, he's back now, and it sounds very much as if all those postcards he wrote about "having a wonderful time" were really true. . . . He went to Nassau on the S. S. Allegheny and preferred that city to Havana. . . . While there he saw some of Billy Rose's World fair entertainers in a new water show—and this performance was given in an open air pool on such a bright moonlight night that no spot lights were necessary. . . . He made the trip to Havana and back aboard a clipper ship—going over in an hour and 45 minutes and returning in ten minutes less time—which, when you consider that it's a distance of 238 miles, seems almost impossible. . . . Incidentally, Don's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester L. Wolf, have just returned from Miami.

* * * * *

WHILE we're talking about returning vacationists, I mustn't forget to tell you about some other folks who came back from the south only yesterday. . . . Erna Erdenberger, Mabel Brown, Jessie Hayne and Bertha Schafer drove down to New Orleans, La. last week. . . Their trip also included the Bellingrath gardens at Mobile, Ala., Natchez and Vicksburg, Miss. and Pensacola, Fla.

When the Weimarkreis, German club at Seton Hill college, entertained members of the faculty and student officers of all clubs there recently, a Mansfield girl, Elaine Schiller, took part in the program, which was in the form of a reception given by Goethe at the Court of Weimar upon his return from Italy. . . . Elaine sang "Das Veilchen" by Mozart and "Ich Liebe Dich" by Beethoven. . . . In a scene from the Prolog of "Die Youngfrau von Orleans" by Schiller, she took the role of Thekla and gave "Wallenstine's Tod."

TOMORROW is an important day for Janey Bushnell as she's going to Cincinnati to appear at a meeting of the Federation of Music Study club's convention. . . . She will demonstrate her ability to play the piano by ear. . . . Her mother, Mrs. Fred Bushnell, her brother, Max Hackedorn, and Marie Marks Porterfield are accompanying Janey to the southern Ohio city.

* * * * *

* * * * *

THIS was an exciting week-end for Charlotte Brightbill as she went to visit on the campus of Bowling Green university. . . . Saturday night she was the guest of Neil Hoak (a student at the school, whose home is near Cleveland) at an inter-fraternity dance. . . . I wish I could have been there too, Lucy, because George Hall's orchestra and Dolly Dawn furnished the music. . . . Then yesterday she was entertained at dinner by a group of the students, who later motored to the Hotel Commodor Perry in Toledo for tea-dancing.

I'LL be looking for a letter from you real soon now, Lucy, so send me all your news—and I'll do the same for you again next Monday.

Marianne

Was It Love or Snobbery?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Was it love or just plain snobbery that landed a young man in jail, and caused him to be put on probation for three years?

If it was love, which is apt to turn the wisest "nuts" the escapade of the young man has our sympathy. "All the world loves a lover," as we've been reminded. But if it was snobbishness, which is just another definition of vulgarity, we think the young man got all coming to him for being too snooty to ride in a bus.

Here's the story. He lived in Washington, but had a date with a college girl for a dance in a distant city. The modern equivalent of Solomon in all his glory, he arrayed himself in top hat and tails. Whether this unimpeachable attire belonged to him, was rented, or borrowed, the story doesn't state. The result—an apparition rivaling in elegance those dinner clothes and carbonated water ads scattered through magazines.

Looking every inch an Asterbilt, he began to thumb his way northward. Folks impressed by appearances gave him a lift. The more cautious, bearing in mind warnings to trust no thumber, sped past him. He got as far as Baltimore, where it began to rain. A sorry circumstance for the top hat and tails, whether owned, rented or borrowed.

Love has prompted madder things than the "borrowing" of an automobile, but to threaten the owner that the car would be junked if $50.00 is not forthcoming, is strong stuff, and suggests the snob rather than the lover. But whatever the urge, the young man did not lack character witnesses. A corporation attorney vouched for him as a "perfect young man," and a clergyman pronounced him O. K.

In extenuation of lifting the car and writing a demanding note to the owner, the young man stated that he was "too embarrassed to ride in a bus in top hat and tails. But why—? Certainly a more snobbish statement was never heard in court.

Snobbishness concerning vehicles went out a quarter of a century ago with prancing steeds, two men on the box, and the general clatter which announced the passing of those who took their airings for all the world to envy.

Snobbishness today is as quaint as pantalettes or a flowing beard. The dictionary defines this quality as "cringing to superiors, and overbearing to inferiors in position."

In the earliest times elephants were trained for war.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"You are surprised," the little old woman said, looking intently at us, "but if you think a bit, my action is only a logical one. I find that the secret I have guarded for years is known to an enemy of my country who is making use of it for his own base needs. There is no longer anything to be protected. I am very old. I may die at any time. I had planned to destroy these records within the week. It is fortunate that you came when you did. They might have been ashes."

"When the reason for keeping a pledge vanishes," the tired old voice said slowly, "a person must use one's own judgment as to one's course. My brain and my conscience agree that the best use I can make of these old records is to give them into your hands freely and without condition. I do not ask that you ever destroy them. Use the knowledge they give you with my blessing."

"Dear Miss Carman," I said earnestly, "we never can thank you sufficiently for what you have done for us. Will you forgive us if we hurry away now? I am so anxious to show my father these maps."

Her thin lips quirked surprisingly upward in a little smile.

"I'll forgive you on one condition," she said.

"It is granted before you name it," I countered promptly.

"When this is all over," she said slowly, "if I am still here, will you come back and tell me the end of this dramatic adventure? I shall be so thrilled to hear it."

"I can think of nothing which would give us greater pleasure," I assured her, and when Lillian had echoed my words, we took our leave of Miss Carman. Clasping jealously the documents she had given us, we were then borne swiftly back to the farmhouse in the armored car.

Dicky was on the veranda, evidently watching for us, and as the car stopped for identification by the guards, he came down the steps to meet us.

"You've certainly taken your time," he grumbled, but the look in his eyes was that of such relieved anxiety that I could feel no resentment for his surly tone. Dicky has something of the temperament of some mothers who are tortured by anxiety and premonitions of dire happenings when their children are lost, and spank them soundly when they are found.

"You can bet your last plugged nickel on that, Dickybird," Lillion said airily, "but was it worth it? Just wait until you hear what happened. And you'll have to wait. We mustn't say a word until we see the Chief. Where is he?"

Dicky helped us to alight, lifting his eyebrows at the bundles of papers which Lillian and I were clasping so tightly.

"Don't tell me!" he began, then stopped short and put a hand beneath an elbow of each of us.

"The Chief is waiting in his room, refusing dinner or other solace until he knows you're back again. Come along! Let's go over the top"

Pleasing Voice Captivates

By MME. QUI VIVE

Do not overlook or undervalue the charm of a pleasing speaking voice. It is a rare quality of beauty. It has yodeled many a man to the altar.

No shouter or shriller need fancy that she has nice manners. Nice women just don't screech. A low, clear voice is a mark of culture. A yelling woman is an offence against civilization. Strong words, these, but something should be done. American women have the reputation the world over as loud talkers.

One type of offender is the girl who combines cackles and giggles. Scatterbrain. She jangles the human nervous system and insults human ears. You'll find, usually, that she is nervous and self-conscious, a condition which, it is likely, she can't help. But she can exercise a little restraint.

Worse still are the droners, clanking on the same dull note. No variations, no inflections, no expressive nuances. The listener gets drowsy, loses interest in the conversation. These women should liven up a bit. They aren't dead yet, really.

* * *

Upbraid a woman for shrilling or shouting and she'll tell you it's nothing of the sort, it's just that her voice carries. She pitches her voice too high, uses too much volume; it is as simple as that. It is easy enough to restrict volume of sound and to cultivate tones that are smooth, free of brittleness.

A throaty voice is caused by tensity of the vocal chords, which is largely a habit that can be overcome. Vocal lessons will improve it. A deep, masculine voice is an inheritance, but vocal culture can improve even that.

Repeated and frequent emphasis is tiring to the listener. Everything is TOO, TOO wonderful. Or PERFECTLY devastating. The soft and loud pedal are used alternately; there is no middle register.

* * *

Whiners! Children aren't the only ones who whine. Mothers do too. No individual with courage and spirit will do it.

Mumblers! They drive you crazy because you can't understand half they say. The mumbler who is a fast talker is the limit.

A beautiful voice carries lights and shades of expression. It is not a monotone, nor does it scamper up and down the scale. It provides pleasure to the ear and comfort to the soul. It is a beauty quality of the first water. If it is low and sweet it speaks to the heart as well as to the mind.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, April 23.

AFFAIRS may move at a very lively tempo on this day, according to the influencing lunar aspects. Disruption, disturbance and sudden denouements may be looked for in this campaign, which may be progressive and productive if carefully managed. However, immature ideas and plans may lead in wrong directions. A complete revision of methods and objectives may be desirable. Affiliation with large corporations, political, diplomatic or fraternal bodies, and using finesse rather than abruptness, are advised. Sign papers carefully.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for the unexpected this year, in which there may be a sudden reversal of plans, with upsets, disturbances and quite unpredictable developments. With well-considered measures in promoting advanced or progressive projects, and with the assistance from corporations, political or fraternal organizations, there may be surprising denouements. Be cautious with all writings and contracts.

A child born on this day may be progressive, original and constructive in new lines or novel ideas, attaining its ends by tact, strategem and subtlety rather than radical measures, although having revolutionary trends.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHO IS VULNERABLE

Vulnerability has a telling influence on the bidding of many hands. Weighing its probable effect on the other three players can often be the decisive guide in figuring out their likely holdings. After doing that, you frequently must consult the vulnerability factor again in order to decide which course you prefer to take, possibility of one side or the other playing the hand at a sacrifice contract in order to reduce the score made by its opponents.

A.	B.
♠7 2	♠A
♥K 8 6 4	♥K 8 6 4
♦A 6 5 3	♦A 6 5 3
♣9 7 4	♣Q J 10 2

Suppose the bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♥	1♠
3♥	3♠	4♥	4♠

and you, as South, hold either of the two hands given above. Your action would be greatly influenced by the vulnerability situation. Your partner might have shaded his opening third-hand bid appreciably when not vulnerable, especially against vulnerable opponents, whereas he probably had a good sound opening when vulnerable, and the same factors influenced your opponents in reverse fashion.

A consensus of opinion of a dozen fine players has been gathered on their preferred next action with these hands.

With hand A, you have stretched your own powers to the limit in bidding 3-Hearts. If neither side is vulnerable, you had better pass now, and take out to a reluctant 5-Hearts sacrifice if your partner doubles 4-Spades. With your side alone vulnerable, pass, but don't risk 5-Hearts if your partner doubles. With only the opponents vulnerable, sacrifice at 5-Hearts. With both vulnerable pass and also pass a double by your partner.

With hand B, you had plenty of strength for your first bid, and good defense values. You may feel sure your side can make 5-Hearts and also defeat 4-Spades. With neither side vulnerable, you probably will score more points by doubling, but it is close. With your side alone vulnerable, 5-Hearts probably will get you more. With the opponents alone vulnerable, double. With both vulnerable, it is again close, but a double is preferred slightly by a majority of those queried.

Pain In Arm and Back Often Kept Mansfield Lady Awake

Also Had Bad Taste in Mouth, Spots Before Eyes, Coated Tongue, and Other Troubles. Praises Vendol for Wonderful Relief.

"For the past four years I have been bothered by constipation, but at times it was worse, and when these bad spells came on it made me miserable." Said Mrs. Virgil T. Alexander, whose husband is employed by the Mansfield Tire and Rubber Company, and who lives at 296 W. Fifth Street, Mansfield, to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store.

"Sometimes the pains in my arm and back were so bad I could hardly stand it, and kept me awake for hours many a night. Seemed the least bit of extra exertion would tire me out, but one of the worst things this condition brought on was a coated tongue, unpleasant breath, bad taste in my mouth, and I'd often see little spots darting before my eyes.

"Even a light meal would often lay heavy and my food turned sour in my stomach, forming gas that made me feel tight and bloated. Little particles of undigested food would rift up into my throat.

"I was advised to try Vendol, and truly I never took any medicine that gave such grand relief. Seemed it was made just for me.

"Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets acted so nicely on my bowels and gave such grand relief from constipation that it wasn't long till all these pains in my back, arms, and limbs were only a memory; all feeling of gas, bloating, "heartburn", and dyspepsia, had gone and my tongue cleared off. Bad taste in my mouth disappeared, and I'm never troubled now with spots before my eyes. Vendol gave me wonderful relief and I believe it will help everyone suffering like I did."

Mrs. Virgil T. Alexander

A special representative, called the Vendol Man, is daily at Central Drug Store, corner Main and 4th Streets, to explain all about this famous medicine. Come see him, there is no obligation; learn how Vendol can help you, too. Most all leading druggists sell it.

Fiery Cross Burned In Bradner School Book Fight

LEGION DRIVE AGAINST ISMS STIRS DISPUTE

Dynamite Caps Exploded In Front of Woman Board Member's Home.

(By United Press)

BOWLING GREEN—The controversy over books in the public school library at Bradner, O., was revived today after a fiery cross had been burned and dynamite caps exploded in front of the home of a school board member.

Mrs. Glada Wierbaugh, the board member, refused to discuss the incident that occurred over the week-end except to say that "it is part of this school fight."

A fiery cross was burned and dynamite exploded in front of the home of Rev. William Wiegman, president of the board, on April 6.

The controversy started when a dozen books were taken from the school library and burned in the furnace. One faction charged that the books taught Communism. Rev. Wiegman charged that the dispute over social science books was started to force the ouster of C. L. Messmore as school superintendent. He said the books had been in the library a long time and were used for reference rather than as textbooks.

The American Legion has started a campaign in all Wood county schools to remove books which discuss foreign "isms." Carl Dukes, county commander, said the matter would be discussed at a county Legion meeting Thursday night at Rossford. C. S. Harkness, county school superintendent, will explain at the meeting what was contained in the books.

Sheriff Arnold Isch was not notified of the midnight cross burning. No damage was caused but the display was witnessed by many of Bradner's 850 residents.

VOTE FREEDOM GIVEN TO WPA

Workers Told Votes in Next Election Are 'Your Own Business.'

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) —Works Project Administration supervisors and 2,000,000. WPA workers received notice from WPA Commissioner F. C. Harrington today that their votes in the coming elections are "your own business."

Harrington assured WPA workers that they are free to vote as they choose without reprisals, or to refrain from voting if they so desire. He warned supervisory and administrative employes that their participation in the political campaigns would not be tolerated.

The instructions are issued in a letter which Harrington said would be posted on all WPA bulletin boards and handed to each worker with his next paycheck.

"WPA is not in politics and does not take part in politics, either directly or indirectly," he said in emphasizing that WPA workers were responsible to no one but themselves for their votes.

Harrington's action apparently was designed to prevent political activities by WPA workers such as those charged to prevent political activities by WPA workers such as those charged to supervisors and others in the 1938 primaries in Kentucky and other states. Disclosures by a special senate committee which investigated those activities led to the enactment of the Hatch "clean politics" law prohibiting political activities by all but policy-making officials on the federal palroll.

WELL, LOOKS AS THOUGH WE'D HAVE 2 DAYS OF SUN, ANYHOW

Two days of sunshine will be the limit for Mansfield this time if the weatherman doesn't miss in his prediction of cloudy skies and showers late Tuesday.

So far this spring the city has received its meager sunshine in one-day doses. Spring was in the air yesterday, however, despite a chilly wind, and today Mansfielders were willing to forget some of the rough treatment they have had from the weatherman.

While Mansfield basked in 50-degree temperatures today, four New England states were hit by a blizzard that left from two to 10 inches of snow.

Beach cottages at Maine resorts were damaged or washed into the sea by roaring waves, and 50 families were marooned when tides swept over roads from Eastport, Me., to Block Island, Me.

Showers forecast for Tuesday are not expected to bring cold weather back, since temperatures throughout the west and northwest are up to spring levels and there's not a cold wave on the weather map.

Eleven Killed In Worst Minnesota Traffic Accident

SLAYTON, Minn.—(AP)—Minnesota's worst traffic accident in its history which brought mangled death to 11 young men and women near here early Sunday morning, sent county and city officials on a searching investigation today in an effort to determine the cause of the tragedy which left the highway near here a shambles.

Two light sedans were involved in the crash—a terrific head on collision that scattered gears and other parts of the machines over the road, strewed some of the victims on the blacktop and crushed others in the tangled wreckage.

Only two of 13 passengers in the two machines, ranging in age from 17 to 23 years, escaped death, and one was so badly hurt that physicians expect he will die.

The dead:

Wayne Gamble, 17, Hadley; Irene Schwab, 17, and Rachel Fisher, 17, both of Fulda; Harold and Lorens Tuynmans, brothers, 18 and 19, respectively, of near Slayton, and Everett Johnson, 17, Slayton. All were riding in one car.

In the second machine and all of Jackson were George Larson, 20; Carl A. Fal, 21; Gordon Meyers, 23; Leo Egge, 18; Hollis Luf, 21. Also in the same machine were Cecil Jensen, 17, Jackson, who suffered five crushed vertebre, and Elmer Meyer, 18, Jackson, who received a broken arm and severe shock.

PROPOSED CUT ON FARM LOAN INTEREST HIT

Opponents Say Plan Would Widen Federal Sphere of Competition.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Farm loan experts—split over a proposal designed to reduce the $7,000,000,000 debt on American farms— agreed today that it would challenge private money lenders.

Sponsors of the Jones-Wheeler farm loan bill said that private lending agencies probably would have to meet a reduced government interest rate of three per cent on farm mortagegs or withdraw from the rural credit field.

Opponents declare—that the measure would "widen the sphere" of government competition wth private capital, and lead to "socialization" by giving the government a financial claim on more thousands of farms.

The legislation would permit the Farm Credit administration to take over privately-held mortgages, but only at valuations based on the "productive value" of the mortgaged land.

Banks, insurance companies and private lenders have joined congressmen and farm administrators in the fight over the Jones-Wheeler bill to authorize a cut in the interest charged borrowers of the Farm Credit administration.

Where the debt appeared to be more than the farmer could pay from his crops, the bill would allow a reduction in the amount owed.

Secretary Wallace, an advocate of the proposal, contends that many a farm is burdened by a debt greater than its actual value. Citing the fact that 25 per cent of the debts now are delinquent, he contends that the deflation of farm prices and land values after the World war has not been reflected fully in farm debts.

DRIVERS FINED

Two Plead Guilty to Charges in Court Today.

The loss of their driving rights for one year and heavy fines were imposed on two automobile drivers in municipal court this morning when both pleaded guilty to charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

In addition to losing his license, Kenneth Hurst, 338 Park avenue west, was fined $75 and an $80 suspended fine on a year-old disorderly conduct charge was also levied.

Officers testified that they arrested Hurst on North Franklin avenue Sunday and that he had a bottle of cider in his coat pocket. They said the car he was driving had no brakes.

Randall Ray, Detroit, Mich., was fined $100 and costs. He was arrested on Lexington avenue by police who said he narrowly avoided a collision with a truck. They testified that a bottle of whisky was found in the glove compartment of the machine.

'Newspaper Ads' Are Discussed At Sales Meeting

"How Newspaper Advertising Works" was the theme of an all-day sales meeting being held today by the Williamson Heater company of Cincinnati in conjunction with the company's celebration of its 50th year in business.

More than 200 Williamson dealers, salesmen and newspaper representatives from northwestern Ohio are attending the sales training sessions in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Feature of the meeting was a talk by Frank E. Fehlman, advertising consultant and adviser to Editor and Publisher magazine. Fehlman explained advertising technique and outlined the Williamson campaign for the spring and fall months.

Fehlman, who is responsible for placing the largest furnace campaign in history, says his theory of successful advertising is "get a good piece of merchandise, put it in a good, clean store, then write good ads about the merchandise and release them in a good newspaper 3 times a week, 50 weeks a year, and never let up."

Fehlman, after an extensive survey of the News-Journal market, selected the News-Journal as one of 200 newspapers out of 2,000 dailies to carry Williamson advertising.

Host to the group is Charles Hoffman, of the Charles Hoffman company, Williamson dealers in Mansfield and vicinity.

APPOINTS NEW WATER CHIEF

Mayor Names O. C. Kalbfleisch to Head Department; He's OK'd by Committee.

The appointment of Oscar C. Kalbfleisch, 127 West Fourth street, as superintendent of the municipal water department to succeed James E. Warrack, was announced today by Mayor William J. Locke.

Locke said Kalbfleisch, a former employe at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, was named Saturday. The Richland county Republican executive committee endorsed him for the position at its meeting Saturday afternoon.

Kalbfleisch, who took over the $2,100 a year job this morning, came to Mansfield from Piqua in 1913. He had been employed by the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company for seven years. He went to the Columbia Tire company in 1920 and remained until the firm discontinued business in 1926. He is the father of Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch.

Locke said he had made the appointment in order to facilitate the annual waterworks program of cleaning and renovating the wells and reservoir.

During the past six weeks the water department has been in charge of Charles Hebel, superintendent of streets.

Amazing Reports of Relief With Williams Formula Create Sensation Here.

Men and women from far and near are flocking daily to their druggist to get Williams Formula, the famous medicine which is attracting widespread attention.

People suffering from acid indigestion, stomach gas, sick-headaches, nervousness, dizziness, "half alive" feeling because of excess acidity and lazy elimination declare they can hardly believe the remarkable relief they have experienced from taking Williams Formula.

Floods of letters have been pouring in from grateful users praising this remarkable medicine. A well known retired farmer, Mr. C. W. Staeffler, 8[illegible] West Spring street, Appleton, Wisconsin, tells his amazing experience to his friends so they can judge for themselves why this medicine is so widely accepted.

"It is very gratifying the way Williams Formula has given me relief. For some time I have been having attacks of gas pains due to poor digestion. Evidently my food was not being taken care of properly and a short time after eating, those pains would start and I felt awfully tight due to bloating. I had very little appetite for food and was underweight, and run down.

"A short time ago I started using Williams Formula and it soon began to take hold. Those gas attacks have been [illegible] and I am getting a better appetite. Also I am gaining weight and strength. I am feeling better now than for a long time and I give Williams Formula full credit for the relief it has brought me."

Why should you suffer spells of dizziness, sick headaches, nausea, poor appetite, gas, bloating, rundown, half-alive feeling due to acid stomach and lazy elimination? Williams Formula may be just the thing you need to bring you relief and a new zest for living. Williams Formula is a compound of Natural Herbs and Minerals which start right to work giving relief, just like taking several good medicines in one. It is sold at Hursh's drug store in two sizes — $1.50, $6.00. Costs only a few cents a day to take and may be worth $10 a bottle to you in the relief it gives. Surely you owe it to yourself to give it a fair trial. Get a bottle of Williams Formula today at Hursh's Drug Store, 4th & Diamond.

"Sure I can afford to fly on $25 a week"

"FRANKLY, I had the same idea you have about flying. I thought it was a rich man's sport. But look at me now—I have my private pilot's license—I never go through a week without at least an hour's flying—and I only make twenty-five bucks a week!

"How do I do it? It's easy. I simply save the few dollars I used to throw away every week on things that didn't matter, and I invest that money in flying. I don't make any sacrifices, but you can bet I would if I had to in order to keep on flying. Boy, you'll never know what a thrill it is until you've tried it!"

Tribe Opens Series

Indians Ready for First Game of Season With St. Louis Browns.

ST. LOUIS — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians encamped here today for their first series of the season with the St. Louis Browns, hoping to work Lake Erie's chill out of their fingers and Detroit's 12-to-2 brand off the seat of their pants.

Willis Hudlin, oldest Tribesman in point of service, had the call for mound duty against Southpaw Howard Mills. Hudlin had been slated for Saturday's chore which was called off by cold weather.

* * *

Bob Feller was served to the customers in the first Sunday game in the Cleveland Stadium and he got pasted in the jaw both literally and via the score card.

* * *

The thermometer hovered around 40 in the lakefront horseshoe and held the crowd to 18,000. Feller couldn't get loosened up and he was hit his hardest since two seasons back. The Tigers teed off on him for six hits and six runs in three innnings.

In the third frame, Barney McCosky, Detroit centerfielder, drove a ball back at Bob so fast one could hardly see it. It hit with a smack and groans arose from the stands.

Umpires and players ran to the box. Feller took off his glove and wiggled his fingers and felt his jaw. He explained he just got his mitt up in time to come between the ball and his face. He finished the inning.

* * *

Schoolboy Rowe slow-balled the Indians almost helpless. Hal Trosky got his first home run of the season, however, in the seventh. Rowe gave up only four other hits.

* * *

Harry Eisenstat, Ken Jungles and Joe Dobson paraded to the mound for the Tribe as the Tigers kept warm running bases.

Cleveland Central Enters 37 Boys in Mansfield Relays To Be Held Saturday.

-- BULLETIN

Cleveland West Tech filed its entry at noon today for the Mansfield Relays next Saturday. West will send a squad of 32 youths here for the classic.

NINE new high school track teams filed application today for entrance in the Mansfield Relays, which will be held at Stadium field Saturday. Coach Harry Mehock announced today.

* * *

* * *

Other entries today were Akron South, with 24; Osburn, 3; Shelby, 15; Cleveland Collinwood, 30; Akron North, 30; Toledo Waite, 10; Cleveland Cathedral Latin, 30; Marion, 25.

The top notch sprinters in the state are entered in the meet Saturday and fans expect new Relay records in possibly the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Thomas, of Cleveland East Tech, holds the state title in the two dashes, and experts say that Daniels of Cleveland Central and Shark of Cleveland Rhodes will press him hard for his laurels. All three are entered in the relays.

Millers, Blues Try For Lead

Both Teams Uncover Sparkling New Hurlers.

(By Associated Press)

Kansas City and Minneapolis, the one-two teams in last season's American Association title scramble, already have made it clear they don't intend to rest on their laurels.

* * *

Both teams uncovered sparkling hurlers new to the league yesterday, each rookie winning his game in brilliant fashion.

* * *

Milt Haefner, 27-year-old pitcher who won 24 and lost nine for Deland, Fla., last year, yielded only four hits in 11 innings. Harry Smythe took over at the point and pitched hitless ball for five more frames before Minneapolis could squeeze out a 3 to 0 triumph over Indianapolis in 16 innings.

Lloyd Johnson lasted 15⅓ innings before four hits produced the three runs to give the Millers the decision. What proved to be the winning run came on Ab Wright's double and Phil Weintraub's single.

Kansas City's newest rookie prize is Charles Wensloff, 23-year-old righthander who won 26 and lost four for Joplin in the Western Association in 1939. Wensloff cut Columbus down with two hits yesterday, including a home run by Pitcher Frank Melton. The final score was 9 to 4.

* * *

Toledo also introduced a promising youngster in Les Wirkkala, who finished the season with the Mudhens last season after winning 15 and losing nine for Fremont in the Ohio State league. Wirkkala scattered seven hits to Milwaukee as Toledo won, 3 to 2. He didn't issue a pass and the only extra base knock he yielded was Les Powers' home run.

* * *

St. Paul rode to a 6 to 1 victory over Louisville on the veteran Art Herring's six-hit pitching. George Stumpf led the attack with four hits.

Heilman Grocers Take Lead In City Tourney

HEILMAN'S Grocers marched into the top position in the first week-end of hostilities in the third annual City handicap bowling tournament with a nifty 3029 score at the Meder alleys yesterday.

Led by Glen Yingling, who collected a 622, the Grocers replaced the Dominion Electrics, who gained the lead in the first shift Saturday night.

* * *

(Tourney officials had previously announced the Dominion total at 2662, but a re-check in scores Sunday gave them a 2873 total).

* * *

McBride and Kutchell took over the leadership in the doubles with a 1271, while J. Moore's 648 rolled Saturday night still gives him the lead in the singles.

In second place in the team event is the Hecht and Casey Coal team with 2949, while third place went to the Dominion club, and fourth to the Motor Cargo, Inc., with 2862.

Pillar and Bride are in second position in the doubles by virtue of a 1172, McBride smacked out a 605 to hold the runner-up spot in the singles.

The balance of the Mansfield teams in the meet will resume activity in the finals Saturday and Sunday.

* * *

The five-man title went to the Moosehaven team of Barberton with a score of 3,147. Hamilton's Moosehaven team was fourth with 3,122.

Bob Feller Is Human After All

American League Batsmen Breathe Easier After Showing Sunday.

(By Associated Press)

AMERICAN league batsmen can breathe easier today. Bobby Feller's only human after all.

* * *

Rated off his performance in white washing the White Sox with a no-hitter opening day, plus the knowledge that his blinding speed is matched by newly acquired baseball cunning, the outlook was anything but bright for the hapless hitters. But he lasted only three innings yesterday as the Detroit Tigers rapped him solidly for six hits and an ultimate 12-2 victory.

* * *

The 21-year-old phenom was greeted with a loud double from the bat of Barney McCosky, first Tiger to face him, and that was all the Tigers needed. They drove him from the mound with a five run assault.

Schoolboy Rowe went the distance for the Tigers and allowed but five hits.

The White Sox, victims of the Feller fireball last Tuesday, finally recovered enough to stage a batting spree for a 6-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

While Ted Lyons, their ageless veteran, was holding the Browns to seven hits, the Sox socked Slick Coffman around unmercifully, getting all their blows off him. After putting the game away safely in the sixth with a three run outburst, the Chicagoans were held hitless the rest of the way by Johnny Niggeling.

* * *

In the only other game getting past the weather, the St. Louis Cards greeted their former hurler, Dizzy Dean warmly —the perennial pop-off was blasted off the mound in the fifth as the Cards won a 5-4 thriller from the Cubs.

* * *

The Red Birds were helpless in the first three frames, the great one's "nothing ball" offering nothing more substantial than a shadow to swing at. But the fifth started with four successive singles, Charley Root taking over in time to see the winning runs come in.

WEEK-END PLAY BRINGS ON CHANGE IN ABC LIST

DETROIT —(UP)— A week-end of heavy bombarding had brought only one change today in the list of keglers at the American Bowling Congress.

Mike Shirghio, gray-haired veteran from M. Vernon, N. Y., accounted for the only shift in the leaders' list. His total of 1935 was good enough for eighth place in the all-events division.

Cincinnati Only Place Where Ball Games Are 'Flooded' Out

CINCINNATI—(AP)— They postpone games for rain, snow, dust storms, sold, and, in disguised form, lack of attendance, almost anywhere in the baseball world but this is the only town in the major leagues where a flood can be blamed.

* * *

The Cincinnati Reds, already four down on future doubleheaders, and the St. Louis Cardinals are in an exciting race today to see who gets to the ball park first, the teams or the old Ohio river backing up Mill creek.

* * *

The game has been set up an hour to 2 p. m. in hopes of getting in nine innings. The two pitchers, Bucky Walters and Bill McGee, have to throw fast before water starts welling up through the outfield drains.

No game ever has been postponed here in modern times because of flood, although there have been some close calls, but tomorrow's game, and maybe Wednesday's look like the rivers.

Lee Grissom, who was liable to do anything, stood in a johnboat anchored 13 feet over the pitcher's mound during the 1937 flood and threw a ball over where he thought the home plate would be, but that was January.

The closest call on a postpone ment came in last year's opener. The teams just got off the field in time, and had to walk planks from the dugouts through the runways to the dressing rooms. Then the Reds went away for three days and when they came back, the flood was over.

* * *

The other river towns in the major leagues are safe. One day 30 years ago in Pittsburgh the outfielders played in ankle-deep water when the old Exposition park on the Allegheny river was flooded, but the Pirates moved to high-and dry Forbes field in 1909.

Two Top Battles Scheduled On Armory Program Tonight

ONE of the finest wrestling cards of the waning indoor mat season will be presented in the Armory tonight and four dynamic figures on the American wrestling pad today will go into action in the double header main event.

Stacy Hall, lightheavyweight champion of the world will defend his Midwest Wrestling association gold title belt in the finale of the big double header program when he meets Davey Reynolds, the "Midget Fox" from Cedar Rapids, Ia. over the two out of three falls route with an hour and a half time limit.

* * *

This match should be a real battle of wits and a brilliant display of the real science of the wrestling sport.

The real dynamite, however, is expected in the other main event, the knock down and drag out battle between "Bull" Marino the rough and ready New York Italian and the mysterious, masked killer of the wrestling pad who calls himself "the Hun."

Bob Steel, fast improving Mansfield lad will meet another Ohio boy in the opening event when he takes on "Curly" McCloud of Etna in the one fall, 30 minute opener at 8:30 prompt.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Will C. Harridge, president of the American league, just missed being on the ill-fated Lake Shore limited, wrecked near Little Falls, N. Y., Saturday with an appalling loss of life. . . .He had reservations on the train, but took an earlier one. . . .Old Jim Thorpe, always greatly admired by Knute Rockne, will have a bit in the forthcoming "Life of Knute Rockne." . . . Jimmy Dykes turned down a $30,000 Philly offer to remain with the Pale Hose at considerably less.

TODAY'S TRUE STORY

Josh Cody, new Temple line coach and one of the best, likes to tell one on himself. . . . Back in 1917 they were about to give him his walking papers from an officers' training school at Fort Oglethorpe because of poor eyesight. . . .Next day Josh played in a camp baseball game and socked two homers. . . .P. S.: The poor eye sight charges were dismissed pronto.

Dick Metz, handsomest of the golf pros, has taken over the Oak Park course near Chicago where Horton Smith formerly held forth. . . .The No. 1 guy in Detroit at the moment is Dick Bartell, who has caught on with the fans in a big league way. . . .Jim Rogers, polo-playing son of the late Will, is bringing his all-California team east on June 2 for a game at the Pegasus Polo club at Rockleigh, N. J. . . .Good reading: Dick Anderson's swell piece on Honus Wagner in the Evansville (Ind.) Courier-Press.

HELP, HELP, HELP!

To the members of this congregation: It is not against the rules to send in dope for this album of song. . .It takes ammunition to keep any engine going. . .Send us the news, gossip and original wise cracks. . .(Four-line jingles also welcome) . . .Send them to Eddie Brietz, the Associated Press, 50 Rockefeller Plaza, New York.

Reason Bill Terry isn't in the "baseball register" is that he didn't bother to answer four or five letters requesting information about himself—not because he demanded compensation for same. . . .Belated reports from Venezuela say Jack Dempsey bonered in calling the Sixto Escobar-Simon Chavez fight a draw after Sixto had Cavez all over the floor.

Myron McCormick, who is making good in the Cincinnati outfield, failed at every infield position before shifting to the wide open spaces.

MANY LEADERS DO VIRTUALLY NOTHING TODAY

Few Aviations, Rails, However, Post Small Fractional Advances in Market.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—A few aviations, rails and specialties posted small fractional advances in today's stock market, but many leaders did virtually nothing.

Up a shade at one time—some later gave way—were United Aircraft, Boeing, Glenn Martin, Sperry, Pennsylvania, Armour, Wilson, International Paper, U. S. Rubber and General Electric.

Bonds were just about steady and commodities irregularly lower. Foreign markets inclined to edge upward.

Financial quarters studied the survey of the magazine "steel" which said absence of a buying rush in this industry was due partly to the fact consumers inventories are relatively large and partly because purchasers expect to be accorded protection on this quarter's requirements at present prices even should former quotations be restored.

Encouraging was the department of commerce summary indicating independent retail store sales in March were 23 per cent over February and 6.5 per cent greater than in March last year.

At the Theaters

Technicolor Cartoon.

Walt Disney's second full length Technicolor production is "Pinocchio," an adaptation of the story beloved by grownup and children alike, which was originally written by Carlo Lorenzini under the pen name of C. Collodi. After Geppetto, the wood carver, makes Pinocchio he wishes the Blue Fairy would bring the marionette to life to be a son to him. But Pinocchio has to prove himself worthy and the story concerns the many scrapes and adventures he undergoes before this is accomplished. Tuesday will be the last showing of this feature at the Ohio theater.

The Truth of Medicine.

This seems to be the season for pictures with something to say. Continuing through Tuesday at the Madison theater is "The Story of Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," starring Edward G. Robinson. The studio has fashioned a script for this picture which gives visual and vocal expression to the government's attempt to bring medical truth to light. In the lighter vein is "Saps at Sea," with Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy as the comedians.

* * *

Two Outstanding Films.

Two of the best pictures of the season are "Honeymoon in Bali" with Fred MacMurray, Madeleine Carroll and Allan Jones, and Bette Davis, Miriam Hopkins and George Brent in "The Old Maid," which opens Tuesday at the Majestic theater. The former picture is in the lighter mood with Fred convincing Madeleine that marriage is more satisfactory than a business career, from New York to Bali. The film "Old Maid" is one of Miss Davis most successful presentations.

* * *

Gay "Paree."

Paris, the gay resort of the world's playboys, is the colorful background for the drama "One Night in Paris," which is the feature attraction at the Park theater. Judy Kelly and Joan Marion are the ladies in the cast with John Lodge, Hugh Williams and Wallace Geoffrey among the men in the more important roles. The main attraction is Charles Laughton and Maureen O'Hara in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Triumph of Steam.

A thrilling scene which occurred many times when full-rigged sailing ships ruled the seven seas was reenacted off the California coast during the filming of "Rulers of the Sea," epic picturization of the triumph of steam over sail which is showing at the Ritz theater. The co-feature is Jane Withers in "Pack Up Your Troubles," with the Ritz brothers adding fuel to the flame. Jane has some hilarious impersonations to offer in this picture.

Three Separate Investigations of Disaster Pushed

CLUES SOUGHT FOR CAUSE OF TRAIN WRECK

Final Death Toll Believed Placed at 30; Injured on Way to Recovery.

(By United Press)

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y.—Three agencies pushed separate investigations today into the wreck of the Lake Shore limited, crack New York-Chicago express of the New York Central railroad system in which 3 persons were killed.

Two inspectors of the interstate commerce commission, which has general jurisdiction over railroads and their operations, aided by a number of technical assistants, were combing the wreckage for clues to the cause.

The New York Central's management pressed its own investigation which was private and its progress was not made public. But the management had already announced that the limited's engineer, Jesse Earl, was hurtling the tons of locomotive and Pullman cars through rainy Friday night at excessive speed when the locomotive jumped its tracks on the sharpest curve in the system.

Inspectors of the state public service commission were aiding the ICC men.

Coroner Active.

Coroner Fred C. Sabin and District Attorney Carl Peterson of Herkimer county pursued the third investigation which was more or less suspended pending the recovery of Andrew Bayreuther, foreman engineer of the New York Central, who was riding in the limited's cab.

Bayreuther, before he became unconscious from his serious injuries, had told Sabin that Engineer Earl was not traveling at excessive speed, though trying to make up lost time.

The New York Central had announced that Earl's speed had been established as 59 miles an hour by the tape punched by the speed recording device in the cab. Railroad regulations require trains to take the curve at which the accident happened at no greater speed than 45 miles an hour.

Still in Ditch.

Four Pullman coaches and the locomotive still remained piled in the ditch alongside a rock embankment and it may be Thursday before the last of the wreckage is removed.

New York Central officials believed that the death list would stay at 30 unless some of the 20 seriously injured passengers die. Hospital authorities reported that all the seriously injured were expected to recover. The two most critically hurt died yesterday.

A faint possibility remained that a few bodies might be under the cars which haven't been lifted.

End Of Road Near For Washington Township Board

The Washington township board of education will write the last chapter in the history of one of the oldest of the county's rural districts when the board holds its final session April 29 at Washington township house.

While school probably will be held next year in two of the township's three one-room buildings, the district will lose its identity May 1 when it becomes a part of the Madison township district.

The county board of education ordered the merger three weeks ago at the request of the Washington township board. About 55 pupils in the township will be affected by the consolidation.

After the Washington board completes its business, administration of the township schools will be taken over by the Madison board. Robert R. Hammett is president and W. A. Freeman is clerk of the Washington township board.

Foreign Policy Becomes Campaign Issue

Up and Down THE STREET

That victory the Cleveland Indians won over Detroit in their opening home game last Friday almost disrupted the administration of Richland county's government today. Two of the three county commissioners, C. L. Mitchell and Ray Hout who attended the opener, were so hoarse they could hardly speak. They blamed their colds on the wet chilly weather Friday and the yelling they did for the Indians.

M'NUTT INJECTS VOTE INTEREST

Presidential Aspirant Booked to Speak at Lima Meeting; Sawyer on Program.

COLUMBUS— (INS)—Democratic interest in the May 14 primary was revived somewhat today with the announcement that Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator and presidential aspirant, would speak at a meeting in Lima May 4.

The announcement was made by Francis W. Durbin, Allen county Democratic chairman and candidate for nomination as confressman-at-large. Durbin said McNutt and National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, Ohio Democracy's "favorite son" candidate for the presidential nomination, would be the speakers.

Previously it had been announced that Postmaster General James A. Farley was to speak at another Democratic rally in Cincinnati May 10. Both McNutt and Farley have been mentioned as presidential possibilities.

In Columbus, Charles H. Hubbell, Cleveland politician, submitted to Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert a draft for a proposed constitutional amendment that would extend the terms of elected state officials from two to four years.

Hubbell, himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, said his proposal would affect the offices of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer of state and attorney general. The state auditor now holds office for four years.

Hubbell said he hoped to have the amendment ready for submission to voters at the November election.

AVIATION NEWS—

FLIERS BACK IN THE AIR - - TESTS BY CAA BIG EVENT OF THE WEEK

Mansfield fliers were kept grounded last week by rainy weather which made the runways at the municipal airport unsafe.

But you can't keep those boys stymied for long with the weather we've had the last two days. A sharp wind whipped over the field yesterday and early this morning. Dr. Burr M. Hathaway, General hospital's pathologist, hopped off for Canton.

He had as his passenger Miss Mary Lewis, laboratory technician, whom he was flying to Canton for a visit with relatives.

* * *

Biggest news of the week was the announcement by officers of the Richland county chapter of the National Aeronautical association that a proposal abd been filed with NYA officials in Columbus for improvements at the flying field.

The association has been trying to get the barren spots in the runways at the field sodded for years and it looks now as though the job may be done.

Attention in local aviation circles today was focused on the examinations to be given 45 participants in the Civil Aeronautics Authority's civilian pilots training course tonight at Senior high school.

The class includes six girls and 39 men who have undergone 12 weeks of rigid instruction in meteorology and navigation and CAA air regulations.

Examinations will be conducted by Major E. H. Jose, Chicago, the government's private flying specialist, to determine the 10 students and five alternates who will be given flight instruction this summer. Jose arrived in Mansfield yesterday.

Nine men and one girl student who rank high in the tests will be trained by the government without cost. The five next high will be chosen as alternates.

Actual flight instructions will begin about May 15 with James R. "Bud" Harrington, airport manager, who has tutored the ground school candidates, in charge.

* * *

The news that the Civil Aeronautics authority, as such, will be no more, since it is shortly to be taken over by the bureau of commerce, has flying folk in this area puzzled and disturbed.

A telegram announcing the news and asking for comments on the change was received the past week by Harrington. Comment of local pilots was that they are tired of having the flying business kicked around by the government. Harrington says he replied that it should be allowed to remain as is.

* * *

Mansfield is to be publicized from the air if the letter received by the Chamber of Commerce this week for information about our city sent to the TWA airlines means anything.

Capt. Henry C. Deitz, who commands a flight over Mansfield daily on the Chicago-Pittsburgh run for the airline wrote the chamber for information concerning the city. He said he wanted it to tell his passengers about the community when they flew over this area.

OFFICE ROBBED

Dentist Reports Theft of Gold From His Supplies.

ASHLAND—Dr. E. F. Kinstle, Ashland dentist, told police here today that his downtown office had been entered over the weekend and about $100 worth of old and new gold taken.

Dr. Kinstle said he discovered the burglary yesterday when he went to his office to do some work. Police said they were of the opinion that the thief used a pass key to enter the office as none of the windows or doors showed evidence of being forced.

RADIO SPEECH TOUCHES OFF NEW STRATEGY

Number of Delegates to Both Party Conventions to Be Picked This Week.

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON — In line with President Roosevelt's assertion that the United States "was keeping out of the wars in Europe and Asia," Democratic leaders gave every indication today of making administration foreign policy a key point in their political campaigning.

Mr. Roosevelt touched on world relations in a radio speech Saturday night to Young Democrats' rallies, in which he called for nomination by his party of "a liberal pair of candidates, running on a liberal and forward-looking platform."

The president gave no hint, however, as to what candidates might win his support in the event he does not run for a third term.

His discussion of foreign affairs included the statement:

"We are keeping out of the wars * * but I do not subscribe to the preachment of a Republican aspirant for the presidency who tells you in effect that the United States * * should do nothing to bring about a better order * * of world peace when the time comes."

Politicians here expressed the belief that the "Republican aspirant" to whom he referred was Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney.

Senator Byrnes (D. S. C.) picked up the president's viewpoint in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee. He said that Dewey had "one foreign policy for the Atlantic seaboard and another * * for the middle west."

Senator Schwellenbach (D.-Wash.) told a West Virginia rally that the New Yorker's speeches "indicate a sublime ignorance of any of the fundamentals of foreign policy."

Then, Postmaster General Farley told a Boston audience last night that the record of the Roosevelt administration in keeping the nation out of war was a "remarkably outstanding" one.

With the president and Dewey far out in front in pledged and semi-pledged convention delegates, the Democrats this week will select 80 additional delegates, including 72 in Pennsylvania's primary tomorrow and 8 at large in an Illinois convention Friday. They already have chosen 248 of their total of 1,094.

Republicans will pick 106 this week to add to their 336 already selected out of a total of 1,000. The 106 will consist of 3 to be chosen in Hawaii today, 72 in Pennsylvania tomorrow, 6 in Delaware Wednesday, 2 in the Philippines Thursday, and 8 at large in Illinois, 11 in Mississippi, and 4 at large in Missouri Friday.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

The Glorified.

Not long ago on Broadway the phrase "Ziegfeld Girl" was the ingredient that sold a story to the front pages. A girl got married, and it was dog bites man; a Ziegfeld girl waltzed down the aisle and it was two-column art on page one. A divorce was more important if one of the Glorified took the train to Reno, a scandal was bigger if it involved a belle who had once worn beads for Ziegfeld, a murder mystery with a "Follies" girl in the cast and plenty of pictures in the files was a city editor's dream.

Ziegfeld died in 1932 at the age of 63, the top producer in his field, the epitome of unfailing taste. He had a flair for lavishness and a genius for beauty; his shows had a lot of girls, and all the girls were prettier than any other girls in town. The knees of a Ziegfeld chorus line were alone worth the price of admission.

* * *

The Ziegfeld girls are still around. A lot of them are 40, and now the phrase when they make the gazettes is "former Follies girl," but there is still about them something of the glamor that was theirs when the world for glamor was "it."

A roomful of them, members of the Ziegfeld Club, Inc., met for a cocktail party at Colbert's restaurant last week, and "Ziggie" would have smiled to see them. Most of them were tall, trim and chic. Under coats of mink, silver fox and occasionally sable, most of them wore the still streamlined figures that made the baldheaded rows sigh in the early 20's. . .

But the talk was different from the talk that used to make the dressing rooms buzz in the days when the girls concentrated on dates and diamond bracelets. Somehow, in the passing of the years, their interest has switched from daddies to da-da's.

* * *

Nearly all of them are married, or have been, or will be, or could have been. A few are spinsters; some have careers; a great many have babies.

Talk to pretty Anita Rice York for two minutes and the conversation veers to children—specifically her nine-year-old son, Charles. Anita is happily married and thoroughly a mother although she is as slender and blond and beautiful as one of this season's show girls. It was 1928 when she last danced in a Ziegfeld extravaganza.

"I don't miss show business," she said. "It was great to be with Ziegfeld, but show business was more or less of a job with me, and I'm happier now. I'll take married life, and a home and children.

"My husband is a musician, playing now in the orchestra at 'DuBarry Was a Lady.' He's doing all right. We've just built our own home in Long Beach, a two-story house with a nice yard. I teach in my own dancing school—just as a hobby. I'm just a contented married woman now—not a glamor girl."

* * *

Ben Bernie sauntered into the room and drew a chorus of greetings from blondes, brunettes and red heads. The "girls" chattered about the former Ziegfeld stars—Marilyn Miller, Will Rogers, Jack Donahue, Fannie Brice, Helen Morgan, Bert Wheeler, Ina Claire, Ann Pennington and Peggy Fears. There were whole choruses of "Have you heard about—?"

Someone asked whatever happened to Frieda Mierse, the featured show girl who was recently divorced from Ed Wynne. She wasn't at the party. But one of the girls confided:

"I'll tell you about Frieda. She's really domestic. She'd rather keep house than take one of those modeling jobs. She's still very beautiful."

* * *

Helen Gates, a tall striking brunette who once understudied the famous shimmy dancer, Gilda Gray, passed by attired in tailored black, with a large black hat.

"I hear Gilda's going to open at the Diamond Horseshoe," she said. "I can't wait to see her."

Spying a pretty blonde at a nearby table she called out:

"Agnes, I have a proposal for you!"

Agnes surveyed the suitor, a lad across the room, and declined.

"Don't like men with mustaches," she said.

Agnes was Agnes Francy Metcalfe, one of the Ziegfeld girls whose career has kept in the news pages. At 14, she played Goldilocks in Ed Wynn's "Simple Simon," and she did bits in the 1931 Follies. Now she's a Powers model, so petite she wears children's size-garments.

She weighs 100 pounds—exactly what she weighed when she was a Ziegfeld beauty—and keeps that way, not by diet or exercise, but by playing polo. She is divorced from Logan Metcalfe, a millionaire who previously had been married to Madge Bellamy, the screen star.

"That's what brought us together, discussing Madge Bellamy," Agnes sighed. "Madge was so wonderful."

She said the year with Ziegfeld was the most glamorous of her life.

"Look at them!" She encompassed the room and the girls with a look. "It's like a college reunion!"

* * *

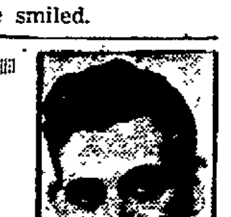
Across the room was Diana Lanzetta, a stately blond, widow of the late Representative Lanzetta. Someone said she was interested in going into politics. Mozellicita Stapp, whose marital difficulties with the wealthy and eccentric Prescott Van Wyck kept the typewriters busy for months, was at another table.

A few of the girls who had seen Frances Mack Hartigan at a Ziegfeld party two years ago said she was still sensationally beautiful. She was the reigning beauty of the 1908 Follies—a red-head with a magnificent figure and a sparkling footlight personality.

The beauties talked about the things girls talk about at Vassar reunions of the class of 1921. Husbands. Children. Nail polish. The other girls. Chinese checkers. The good old days. That new hairdresser on 57th St. Formulas. Bridge. Florida. The time Gladys Glad got mad at Mark Hellinger.

"Ziggie," if he could have heard it, would have smiled.

Hollywood Speaks---



—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"The Dark Command." Screenplay by Grover Jones, Lionel Houser, F. Hugh Herbert from novel by W. R. Burnett. Directed by Raoul Walsh. Principals: Claire Trevor, John Wayne, Walter Pidgeon, Roy Rogers, George Hayes, Porter Hall, Marjorie Main, Raymond Walburn.

* * * * *

There were wild and bloody doings in the Kansas territory just before and during the War Between the States. This film record, part fiction and part fact, utilizes those doings as a background for an exciting large-scale "western."

After young Bob Seton from the Texas plains (Wayne) and darkly-handsome Will Cantrell, the Lawrence schoolmaster (Pidgeon), start their rivalry for Mary McCloud (Trevor), there's scarcely a foot of film in which action, action and more action is not the order.

Even before that, the action is on—verbal and fistic and gun battles between settlers from North and South, for the Territory is a rehearsal ground for the national blood-letting that is to come.

When Seton wins over Cantrell as town marshal, the school teacher turns to outlawry. Gun-runner, slave-smuggler, guerrilla chieftain, Cantrell spreads terror over Kansas, marries the girl under false pretenses, is tracked down finally by stalwart Seton—but not before his innocent wife has learned the truth, and not before his "dark command" has attacked and ravaged and burned the town of Lawrence for a spectacular climax.

* * *

"It All Came True." Screenplay by Michael Fessier, Lawrence Kimble, from novel by Louis Bromfield. Directed by Lewis Seiler. Principals: Ann Sheridan, Humphrey Bogart, Jeffrey Lynn, ZaSu Pitts, Una O'Connor, Jessie Busley, John Litel, Grant Mitchell, Felix Bressart.

* * *

And it practically has come true, all they've been saying about the O - - - - Girl. With a good yarn, about a gangster hiding out in a boarding house peopled by quaint characters, Ann shows plenty of talent, plenty of oomph, and a new sincerity.

For all that, it's Humphrey Bogart (as the mugg) who takes the richest helping from the honors dish, playing a tough guy for comedy as effectively as he ever did for menace. There are other delightful characters: Busley, as the boarding-house keeper who "creates" happy endings for her dreamed-up stories; Pitts, as the spinster who imagines herself followed by young men; Mitchell, as a corny poet; Bressart, as a seedy ham-magician; O'Connor, as Busley's partner.

Upshot of the mugg's sojourn at the fading mansion: he turns it into a night club, with some first-rate acts, and then takes the rap he fully had intended to throw off on Lynn which leaves the hero and heroine free for romance.

CHAPTER XXII

The door to Eric's room was open wide when Elaine reached the top of the stairs, puffing slightly, for she had run the whole way. Rushing into the room she saw Eric sitting sullenly in a chair, head bowed, handkerchief pressed to his nose. She walked slowly over to him, pitying him, yet angry. How—how jealous he was; how swift he had been to accept Helen's version of Melvyn's kiss!

He rose as she came over to the bed and offered her a chair but his gesture was merely automatic, his eyes still held the same mad, unreasoning anger in which he had greeted her. She met his gaze frankly and unflinchingly, she had nothing to feel ashamed of, and if he thought she was going to apologize for anything he had another guess coming!

His eyes were the first to fall. "Go head—laugh at me," he commanded in a hurt tone. "Tell me what a fool I was"

Elaine did neither, shrugging her shoulders. "As long as you know that you did act like a fool I have nothing to say," she told him quietly "Only, well, whatever possessed you to do such a thing?"

He flung himself onto the bed and buried his face in his hands. When he spoke his voice was filled with agony. "I really don't know. All I know is that when Helen called me on the telephone and told me about your kissing Jane's brother, I saw red. And then, when I came home this evening, Stuart began grinning as though he had put a fast one over on me and the first thing I knew was that I was taking a swing at him. He's strong and he almost knocked me out"

* * *

Elaine began to tell him how sorry she felt but seeing him blot at his nose with the blood-stained handkerchief she drew a clean one from her pocket and dashed down the hall to the bathroom She returned a few minutes later and drawing his head to her shoulder applied the wet handkerchief to his nose.

He sighed and pressed his cheek against hers "I really don't believe what Helen said," he told her haltingly. "I'm sorry about the whole thing."

"But I did kiss him, Eric," Elaine told him, deciding to tell the truth and be done with it. He would understand that the kiss meant nothing. "Melvyn was so happy to see me again that he—well, we both kissed each other."

That was the truth, too, and Elaine wondered why she hadn't realized it sooner. Had she really been determined to prevent this kiss, she could have stopped him. But she had been happy to see him and, in the final analysis, she had been so happy that she hadn't really objected to the kiss.

He ran his hand through her hair, tugging teasingly at a misplaced curl. "But you really didn't mean it as anything more than that," he told her confidently. He sat up on the bed, shaking his head. "Gosh, I don't know what ever got into me. I never had a fight before, not even when I was a kid."

Elaine could have told him that jealousy caused people to do strange things, she could have told him too that even though she knew he was in the wrong she was glad to know that despite the cowardice he had displayed in the presence of the thug he loved her enough to resort to force if any one tried to pre-empt his claim on her. But she said nothing, deciding it was better to forget the whole affair as quickly as possible. And besides, she had much more interesting news.

"Eric," she cried happily, sinking to a chair, "guess what?"

His face went blank as though he were having difficulty in keeping up with her swift chain of thought. He glanced at her for an instant and then waved his hands in a helpless gesture. "All right what?"

* * *

He could at least have tried to guess, Elaine thought, a pout stealing over her lips She moved the wooden, straightbacked chair closer and looked disconsolately at him She knew she was being silly, that Eric was too concerned over his unseemly conduct to bother about playing games, but it would have been much more fun to tell him the news after he had vainly wracked his brain trying to guess what it was With a little sigh she told him all about the audition, that she was going to broadcast once a week and that she was to receive $50 dollars every seven days for doing so

She looked at him eagerly when she had finished "There I guess now you'll have to let me help with the family finances," she told him teasingly "Goodness, I'm liable to become a rich person, too"

But Eric reacted far differently from what she had expected Instead of showing pleasure at her lucky break, he turned his eyes to the ceiling, the sullen frown once more returning to his face

"It means," he said in a strange tense voice, "that you will be earning more than three times as much as I." He shook his head sadly. "A man doesn't like to know, that, Elaine."

* * *

This was something she had definitely not expected and for a little while Elaine sat quietly in the chair, absently twiddling her thumbs She was keenly aware that she had chosen the improper time to tell him the news. Eric's encounter with Stuart had hurt his vanity, and this news, the news that she was going to earn so much more than he, had the effect of making him feel that he was a complete washout in other things as well.

She reached out and gently turned his head and looked straight into his eyes. "You mustn't feel that way about it," she told him softly. "You've given up so much to marry me, surely I should be doing everything in my power to help you the both of us I've just been more lucky than you, that's all Who knows, tomorrow, the next day, you may be lucky too But until that time comes, Eric, I want to work, I want to do everything within my power to bring the date of our marriage closer."

A grateful smile appeared on his lips and he lowered his head to kiss her fingers. His voice was deep and husky with emotion when he spoke. "Thanks for saying that, Elaine. I suppose I was merely feeling as though I was an absolute failure. It isn't my fault, really. Today I found out that a stock clerk in a department store rate about two degrees lower than a worm. I'm aching all over."

Elaine got to her feet feeling much easier now that the tense moment had passd. She smiled. Eric was proving himself strong again; most men would have created a scene over the fact that a woman was earning more than they.

* * *

But there had been no reason for a scene as Eric had intelligently seen. Of course she would be drawing a larger salary But then, why not? Certainly she had been working much longer than he From the time she was old enough to help her mother dry dishes in the kitchen she had learned to work and to expect to work, and as a natural consequence she had learned how to take advantage of every opportunity, how to forge ahead with every new plan Eric would be doing that too, some day. But he had much to learn, one couldn't expect him to jump into a high-salaried position simply because he had decided, after 22 years of easy, luxurious living, to make his own way in the world. It took time to get ahead in the business world. But Eric would forge ahead Step by step, as he learned more about the business way of doing things, he would advance until, some day she smiled as a delicious thrill coursed through her Some day Eric would be proud that he had started at the very bottom.

STARTING TUBEROUS-ROOTED BEGONIAS

For brilliant colors or the striking effect of pure white in the shady part of the garden where other flowering plants won't grow, nothing can surpass the tuberous-rooted begonia. The blooms of this begonia are so vividly splashed with color they actually rival the color of flowers fortunate enough to be growing in full sunlight.

Tuberous begonias can be started now from tubers. If planting the tubers for the first time, take care not to plant them upside down. The concave side is the top of the tuber. Pink shoots, which indicate new growth, are sometimes found, pushing up from the concave center of the tuber, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Plant tuberous begonia tubers just below the surface of the soil, in flower pots or flats containing equal parts of sand, soil and leaf-mold. Soak the soil well before planting the tubers. After the plants are several inches high they can be set out in a garden bed if all danger of frost is past. When transplanting set the plants with the bulbs just under the ground.

Mansfield News-Journal
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, APRIL 22, 1940.

Back in the old days a commemorative postage stamp was something of a novelty.

Time was when a congressman who sent garden seeds to his constituents was accused of extravagance.

Science note: "During a single inspection, as many as 30 million bacteria have been counted on the arms and hands of a normal individual"—and what a tiresome task it must have been.

Business Prospects Brighten

AUTOMOBILE dealers have been selling many more cars in recent weeks than they did last April. This applies to both new cars and old cars, and it would be still true if the cars and trucks classifiable as war exports were ignored.

By the regular standards of business prophecy, here is a more favorable development than forecasters expected. Motor production and absorption are interwoven with so many kinds of industry and consumption that they make a rather good business index.

The war, too, though interfering with many lines of foreign trade, provides a stimulant in the airplane industry and its feeders. And there are other war goods that may be expected to help raise the production level and keep it higher for some time. Defense measures financed by the government help in the same direction.

So it may be a fair business year, after all, in spite of the uncertainties of a national campaign.

Children Will Help Other Children

A MOVEMENT which is called "The Children's Crusade for Children" is being made this week's special activity all over the United States.

The primary purpose of this movement, which is non-partisan and non-sectarian, is to secure help from American school children for the unfortunate children of other countries—some of whom are refugees suffering from lack of bare necessities.

Sponsored by a large number of America's noted educators, authors and civic leaders, and with distribution of funds to be in the hands of a specially selected jury of awards to apportion money among responsible relief organizations in various countries, this Crusade has been accorded practically universal approval by newspapers and humanitarian and welfare organizations.

During this week, and continuing through Tuesday, April 30, children in all public, private and parochial schools in the country will be given an opportunity to make a voluntary contribution to this fund—the suggestion being that each give as many pennies as they are years old, or as little as a single penny, if they cannot afford more.

In addition to the money-raising phase of the Crusade, however, it is being pointed out that the educational campaign to be carried on in schools in connection with the collection will help teach children the benefits of American democracy as contrasted with conditions in many other countries, and will establish a bond among children in all parts of the United States.

It is worthy of note, in connection with this solicitation, that costs of conducting the Crusade are being met by independent donations, so that every penny contributed by school children will go to help needy children in other countries.

Doctors Advise Natural Foods

DOCTORS are friends of humanity in more than one way. It looked for a while as if the new knowledge of vitamins and their capture in concentrated pills and tablets might lead to a tabloid diet. Many dreaded such a development. However nourishing and healthful a pill might be, it could never be so satisfying as a good beefsteak, a colorful salad or even a well designed vegetable plate.

Now the doctors have taken a stand against replacing normal food with condensed pellets or vitamin-crammed capsules.

The truth is, they said during recent panel discussions, that "you can't keep well on pills alone." The pills may be used to supply some deficiency, but they can't take the place of natural foods.

The way to keep normally healthy, the experts say, is to eat a well-rounded diet. Then you will get all the vitamins, including some that science has not yet discovered.

Nature seems to have distributed the essentials to good health through many different food sources. It is not only pleasant, therefore, to enjoy all the fruits, vegetables, nuts, cereals and meats, but a means of preserving health.

Looks Toward Creative Epoch

AN OPTIMISTIC VIEW of the world's present chaos was taken in a recent sermon by the Rev. Dr. A. E. Keigwin in New York City. He sees the war as less a spasm of nationalism than an eruption of pent-up spiritual life and power.

> "Along with the self-destructive economic warfare is seen very definite moral and religious warfare," he said. "For this reason this may very well prove the beginning of a creative epoch, the greatest of all time. We are finding our way through the defeats of life to sanity of life and to social security. Because this conflict is essentially ethical there is a growing call for spiritual reinforcements. This is the best assurance for the future, the surest reliance for a ruined world."

There may be something in this view. The teachings of the great religious leaders of the past, if really applied, would not only bring peace but would probably solve the economic problems that baffle governments and societies. Acceptance of the idea of the brotherhood of man and of the Golden Rule would produce practical results more far-reaching and lasting than force and conquest could attain.

Started With Carpet Bag

SPEAKING of new businesses and small beginnings, it is noted that the huge express business of the present day began with a carpet bag and a wheelbarrow. The original carpet bag that was the chief depository when the express business was started in America 101 years ago is still in existence and has recently been on view in an express exhibition. The wheelbarrow, in the same show, was the first equipment of Wells, Fargo & Co., in 1844, when it began to pick up and deliver packages in Syracuse.

Such humble beginnings for an ultimately great business should inspire and encourage young people of imagination and enterprise today.

A bad thing about election year is the way so many people lose their sense of humor.

Idle dollars make idle men.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—A slew of capitalites are sitting around biting their finger nails, waiting to see what the census has to report on the migrants.

You could live in any one of two dozen states and think this report a minor item, but don't fool yourself.

Let's take Oklahoma, for example. (There's really no particular reason why we should, except that John Steinbeck has popularized the conception of migrants from that state.) Ever since the "Grapes" made the nation migrant-conscious, Oklahoma has been privileged to laugh up its sleeve at California.

"We are getting rid of a lot of surplus labor—a burden of relief—at the expense of California. Ha-ha," the Oklahomans might say.

Mind you, I say they might say. This is purely a hypothetical item. And since I know what they do say, I'm not putting it in here. I'm only saying that they might well say that. But when the reports are in, California may have the last laugh.

Why?

I'll tell you.

* * *

Nobody Knows.

ESTIMATES here—and they are purely estimates because nobody really knows the migrant situation—are that Oklahoma has lost 50,000 tenant farm families in the last few years. Estimates again are that there are about four persons to a family. That means, if there is anything in estimates, that Oklahoma has lost 200,000 persons.

Oklahoma's population in 1930 was 2,396,000. Its increase from 1920 was 368,000. It is definitely established that Oklahoma's rate of increase in population during the 1930-40 decade was one of the largest in the country. But eliminate 200,000 persons lost by migration and you have a comparatively static population.

What happens then? While other states gain or maintain their representatives in congress on a basis of reapportionment, Oklahoma may stand still or lose. While other states get more money for highways from the federal government, Oklahoma may have to string along on what it has been getting. While the states which have been the mecca of the "Okies" and the Arkies" get increases in relief funds from Washington, Oklahoma may have to sweat through with less than it has been receiving. And the point is that the problem there may be no different from what it is today, or has been for many months.

* * *

Story's Many Sides.

I HAVE chosen Oklahoma because the Steinbeck story has made available estimates from that state. As a matter of fact, the Dakotas probably would provide more sensational figures if government agencies had carried through their investigations in those states.

There are it is claimed, some 350,000 migrant families in the country (this is a conservative estimate—some investigators will bet a hat that there are 1,000,000). And the national average size of family will probably run one-half to one more person than in Oklahoma. That means that only 11 to 17 per cent of the migrants come from Oklahoma. So you can see that this condition is not confined to the state selected here for illustration.

The point is that somebody is going to take it on the chin when the census is in and a good many observers think that it will be the very states that have been losing their Joads.

This is only one fact of the many-sided farm labor situation which the 1940 census probably will uncover. Any time that any citizen, be he green-grocer or insurance man, banker or florist, gets to thinking that this doesn't affect him, he should run around and have a talk with some competent college professor.

No matter whose figures you take on unemployment, there are about 1,500,000 more farm workers than there are permanent farm jobs. Farm workers, out of work, mean migrants—and migrants mean shifting populations—and shifting populations mean a terrific upset in existing laws intended to distribute equitably our Federal funds and the ayes-and-nays that make up our federal government.

Now you know why a slew of capitalists are worrying about the census report on migrants. They want to be sure they are not chewing on grapes of wrath and calling it strawberry shortcake.

Generals Deplore Lack of Funds

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Outside of airplanes and trucks, the industrial preparedness of this country as a result of war orders has been more or less a flop to date. Incidentally, the army has shown itself pathetically inferior to the navy in its strategy on Capitol Hill. Somehow the admirals are much more effective than the generals.

You don't catch the admirals, for instance, making speeches to the country saying that everything is fine—that the navy is in tip-top condition and could whip its weight in wildcats, or Nazis, or what have you. No, whenever you hear an admiral talking in public, or for that matter in private, he is bewailing the fact that the navy's battleships are getting old, that at least three of them could not figure in a battle line because their big guns have not sufficient elevation, or that because of this or that reason the navy simply does not have enough money to spend.

* * *

THE generals seem to do a pretty good job when they are talking to small subcommittees on Capitol Hill, in executive session. They even make converts in the senate and house who strive zealously to do things for the army. But the admirals go right to the public with their story, and are in no whit inferior to the generals when it comes to their committee appearances and their individual contacts with the national legislators.

Of course this time, and for the last two or three times for that matter, the army has been handicapped by the known difference in view between the secretary of war and the assistant secretary of war. This feud has run much longer than most of the spectacular feuds in federal administrations. Washington has expected for years that President Roosevelt would eliminate either Harry H. Woodring, the secretary, or Louis Johnson, the assistant secretary. There are lots of theories as to why he has not removed one or the other, but none seem completely satisfying.

* * *

THE NAVY, in this administration, has been aces from the first. The president himself was more directly interested, because of his life-long love of the sea and boats of every possible description, and because of his more than seven years' service in the Wilson administration as assistant secretary of the navy.

Then the first secretary of the navy in this administration was Claude A. Swanson, who as a senator from Virginia, had been on the senate naval affairs committee for many years and, as a pork grabber for the Norfolk naval base, the Norfolk (Portsmouth) navy yard, and the Newport News shipbuilding industry, had been an enthusiastic big navy man all his life.

Knowing his way round the Capitol, Swanson did pretty well for his department in contrast with George H. Dern, of Utah, the first Roosevelt secretary of war, and his Kansas successor.

All of which is to the point now because the army is trying to convince the senate that the house erred in cutting the $16,250,000 appropriation for educational orders to $2,000,000. The house reasoned that our manufacturers would get their "education" on Allied orders for these technical munitions. But the Allies' buyers found that practically none of the articles could be delivered in quantities for a long time. Which means of course that our army couldn't get them either.

But it would never occur to the army to put over a real war scare in order to get the money it thinks it needs. Of course, such a thing would not occur to the admirals either, except about once a year!

Health And Diet

Non-Combatants As Victims of War.

—By DR. CLENDENING

SOME troublesome conditions with which we had to deal among the soldiers in the last war were the neuroses that developed. Thousands of men had nervous systems that just couldn't stand the strain. "Shell shock" was the name given to one form of war neurosis.

A soldier would be for a time in the midst of exploding shells, and though never hit by a missile, he would become dazed, tremulous and confused, sometimes developing behavior irregularities.

Duplicated in U. S.

Some of the foreign medical journals are reporting cases of neuroses in non-combatants, and I find as I read of them that I seem to see them duplicated in some of my friends in the United States who are in no way directly involved in the war abroad.

Les fortunate than we are civilians in foreign countries who are exposed to the possibility of (1) air-concussion, a form of shell shock, and (2) suffocation trauma. Air-concussion, from proximity to exploding bombs, may initiate every form of hysteria, anxiety, phychosis and malingering; in this war more so because the explosives are so much more powerful. Suffocation trauma is relatively uncommon but there is, as might easily be imagined, a psychological result which comes from being buried for a while in debris.

The civilian in a nation at war, aside from the possibility of these physical accidents, may be exposed to a mental conflict from the following dangers: (1) He may fight. (2) He may take to flight (this often causes more sheer terror than facing bullets). (3) He may dramatize his condition. (4) He may do nothing but feel.

The two last possibilities are the ones which seem to me to be the real possibilities in our own civil population. Dramatizing the condition includes bombastic speeches about what one should do, imaginary dramatization of pain, fear, fatigue, helplessness and hunger. It is a form of hysteria.

The man or woman who does nothing but feel may enter into a state of anxiety neurosis. It may result in a serious nervous breakdown. It was not so much the fighting that men had to do in the trenches, as the anxiety of waiting, inactivity and restriction which brought on some neuroses.

Canadians are already dealing with such conditions in their own civil population. On the American side they are not so obvious but we should keep them in mind and remember when we are talking to our friends that the strain of the situation can induce either a mild hysteria or a mild anxiety neurosis.

Tranquil Stream

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ALONG the brook today life moved in quiet rhythm. Little fishes, in playful schools played up and down the current, concealed themselves a moment beneath the bank and dived into tranquil water. A crayfish moved from his cave almost screened from view by a muddy cloud of water. Translucent trout made shadows on the bottom that were more visible than themselves. Playful waves cast flickering eery movements of light and shade upon the bank, the driftwood and the nearer trees.

Within a crown of coarse reeds and mud I saw a blacksnake sleeping in the sun. His new scaly spring coat glistened as though freshly painted. He lay in graceful, careless oval curves, as quiet as a crooked branch, dreamless and unmindful of tomorrow. I did not disturb him.

As I stepped upon lower ground, I heard a plop and saw the splash of two green frogs into the limpid water. They catapulted from the bank and through the air with white vests showing. Like boys showing off they kicked their long slender legs about the pool and disappeared beneath a shelf of sandstone rock.

A belted kingfisher perched upon a dead sycamore, up stream, and gave his throaty rattle, as he watched for a breakfast. A track on the wavy sand showed where a mink had slipped into the water. Along a swampy place where calamus grew I saw that a muskrat had foraged for the fleshy pungent roots. He had pulled them out with his forepaws, for I saw the imprint of his hind feet and shank in the yielding mud. Doubtless he had washed his find in a little pool nearby—for he would not eat it unless it was clean.

Beneath a spreading thorn tree farther on a colony of spring beauties, pink and white, was sprinkled through the grass. Purple violets by a mossy log stopped me for a moment of admiration. The tree-like forms of tiny horsetail ferns grew through the sand that spread fanlike above the tallest blades of grass.

I listened to the murmur of liquid music. I caught the fragrant moist odors of the stream. I followed with my eyes the graceful curves of the channel between the overlapping hills and sky. And in the back of my mind, for some future day, I stored away a gentle restful picture.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—A group of farm leaders went to the White House to urge Roosevelt to support the Jones bill, which would cut interest rates on government farm loans. And while they got the president's support, they also got an earful on another subject—why the U. S. will NOT get involved in the European war.

The discussion began when one of the farmers asked Roosevelt whether propaganda and the loss of foreign markets would affect U. S. neutrality. This brought an emphatic negative from the president.

"I don't think the American people will lose their heads to the extent of being drawn into the European conflict," he said in effect. "It is true that the emotions of people can be quickly aroused, but reason and logic always triumph in the end. That's why our democratic form of government has survived so long.

"Take, for example, the arms embargo fight. There was a lot of talk from certain elements during that controversy, that if we lifted the embargo it would drag us into the war. Well, all that talk has died down and you don't hear it any more. There was no truth in it and it evaporated.

"The same happened during the debate over extending the reciprocal trade treaties. There was a lot of unfounded talk then, but it has all blown over unless political opportunists inject the issue into this year's campaign."

"What about the Nazi invasion of Denmark and Norway?" asked another of the farm visitors. "Will that endanger our neutrality?"

Again Roosevelt shook his head. "As long," he replied, "as we keep a level head, our feet on the ground and maintain a liberal government, we have nothing to worry about."

Red Cross Delayed.

THE WAR is all over in Finland, but that country still is having hard luck, this time as a result of the war in Norway. For the U. S. neutrality act now is holding up much needed Red Cross supplies to Finland.

When the Nazis invaded Norway, two American vessels—the Mormacstar and Mormactide — were on the high seas with Red Cross supplies for Finland. Then suddenly Roosevelt extended the combat zone, and the two vessels had to turn back.

The relief materials included hospital tents, warm clothing, layettes, surgical dressings, X-ray machines, and other hospital and medical supplies, some of them the hand-made products of Red Cross volunteer units throughout the country.

The material is desperately needed by the Finnish people, but the Red Cross knows of no way to deliver it.

Poland has been in a similar predicament, but now Red Cross material is getting through in large quantities—six months after the first efforts were made. Delay was caused principally by Nazis, who emphatically denied any need for outside assistance.

Finally the Red Cross received written guarantees that none of the material will be claimed by German authorities, and that no objection will be raised to aiding Jews as well as Gentiles.

Political Chaff.

BETS are being offered in the senate cloakrooms that now that Senator William King, veteran Utah anti-New Deal Democrat, has strong opposition, he will climb aboard the third term bandwagon. In his last campaign in 1934, King ran as an administration supporter, but a few days after he was safely re-elected rejoined the anti camp. Running against him this year is Delbert Draper, liberal Salt Lake City lawyer. . . . Since his big vote as a Dewey delegate, Wisconsin Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman, former governor, has started a quiet boom to shelve Governor Julius Heil and grab the GOP nomination. National Republican chiefs would like to ditch Heil because of his proclivity for making impolitic statements. Wisconsin GOP county chairmen plan a statewide survey to demonstrate his unpopularity. . . . Despite the many bitter barbs he hurled at Roosevelt, Senator Burt Wheeler has told intimates he would accept second place if Roosevelt runs again.

Under the Dome.

ONE of the most inspiring sights in our democratic government is to see the president of the United States address a joint session of congress. These gatherings include not only the president and members of the house and senate, but also cabinet members, supreme court justices, foreign diplomats, members of the president's family, plus social and political leaders—all seated in the house of representatives.

But—some members of congress heave a sigh of relief when these sessions are adjourned. What they know, though others do not, is that the roof covering the house chamber is in danger of caving in some day and wiping out the nation's political leaders.

Furthermore, the roof of the senate chamber is supported by similar materials, and architects have recommended that it be replaced.

Serious-minded Horace D. Rouzer, assistant architect of the capitol, solemnly warned members of the senate appropriations committee recently that "in some instances the pins should not be stressed over 12,000 pounds, but computations show stresses up to around 75,000 pounds per square inch." He was referring to the roof on the senate side of the capitol.

Somewhat similar testimony by David Lynn, capitol architect, brought an investigation of the structure which may lead to extensive repairs.

Structural engineers have been retained to investigate the condition of the senate and house roofs. Should the experts agree that the senators and congressmen sit in constant danger, a deficiency appropriation will be asked to carry out the proposed construction.

Fact is that about three years ago Thomas W. Marshall, leading structural engineer, recommeded that modern fireproof roofs be constructed over both chambers. The roofs were so shaky, Marshall urged that the house and senate shoruld adjourn when there was a heavy covering of snow on the capitol.

However, Senator Robert Taft didn't think much of the Marshall report. The roofs have been there for 80 years, he said, "with snows and everything else that anybody could put on it." Also the cost of the construction was estimated at $585,000 by Marshall, and Bob Taft is economy-minded.

Mail Bag.

H. G., Washington—The president's public expression on the question of a third term was made at his "Victory Dinner," March 4, 1937. He told of a conversation with a member of congress, and quoted himself as saying to the congressman, "My great ambition on January 20, 1942, is to turn over this desk and this chair in the White House to my successor, whoever he may be, with the assurance that I am at the same time turning over to him as president, a nation intact, a nation at peace, a nation prosperous, a nation clear in its knowledge of what powers it has to serve its own citizens. I do not want to leave it to my successor in the condition in which Buchanan left it to Lincoln."
